FROM THE CHIEF

Thanks to all of you who came out and shared the evening with us at the Awards Banquet! The food, was outstanding, the speaker entertaining and it was a great night to honor those who served this department last year.

In addition to all of those who received special recognition, Sgt. David Chaney was selected as the City of Euless Employee of the Month for the month of April! The employee of the month award is selected by a committee from nominations that have been submitted by all city employees. Sgt. Chaney was a great selection for this award.

All of our employees are outstanding servants, and it's a very difficult task to single out individuals for special recognition. I believe they all deserve special recognition!

It's been a year since we issued our Challenge Coins. I know that I have issued many challenges over this past year and only had a few not be able to respond with their coin. It's hearting to see the birth of a tradition and so many people take the coin and its meaning to heart.

I received an envelope the other day, and inside it was a clipping from the Star-Telegram's Letter to Editor's page. The letter was one about the passing of Fess Parker, who was the star of several TV shows from the 50s and 60s. The story was told that Mr. Parker came to Vietnam to visit the troops in the late 60s where he was given a challenge coin by one of the units he was visiting. He told the members of the unit he would keep the coin with him as long as he lived. The author of the letter said that about 30 years later he had the opportunity to meet and have lunch with Mr. Parker. During the lunch he worked up the courage to ask Mr. Parker if he remembered the coin. He said that Mr. Parker reached into his pocket and laid the coin on the table and said, "You mean this coin? I told you I would keep it as long as I lived."

I will keep this clipping, and the personal note that came with it, as long as I live. It's a great feeling to know that the people around you share your passion and commitment to serve. Thanks Jud for taking the time to share this with me.

We all have great things to do this year, and I think we should do them greatly! This will be our finest year. Thanks for all you do.

Your servant,
Mike

Great Expectations

A primary responsibility of leadership is to communicate expectations, both with words and actions. When leaders carefully and consistently set expectations, they engineer a flourishing work environment. However, when leaders abdicate their duty to communication expectations, chaos ensues. Here are six rules of thumb to follow as you set expectations in your organization.

1) Set them for yourself first

Leaders must set the bar the highest for themselves. They must go first and give the most. Leaders who demand more of their people than they do of themselves quickly lose credibility with followers. However, leaders who commit to taking the first step demonstrate their belief in the vision, and they earn the right to ask others to follow.

2) Set them early

Have you ever boarded a train without being entirely sure if it was the correct one? If so, then you probably didn't feel at ease until the conductor announced its destination. Once you knew the route, you could relax and enjoy the ride.

Uncertainty causes anxiety. People have an innate need to know where they're headed. They want goals to guide them and targets to hit. By communicating expectations early, leaders provide direction. People feel secure when they know the plan and have a good idea of what the future holds.

3) Set them clearly

Confusion breeds frustration. When a leader fails to communicate clear expectations, people must guess at what he or she wants. Oftentimes those assumptions do not line up with the leader's desires, causing followers to mispend time or squander energy. Clearly communicated expectations spell out a leader's vision and define everyone's roles and responsibilities. Unambiguous expectations also align activity, provide structure, and promote harmony. Serving as a reference point, clear expectations allow people to evaluate their performance and gauge whether or not they are succeeding.

4) Set them optimistically

People generally perform in a way that's consistent with our expectations of them. That's why it's important to believe the best about those around you. When we give others a worthwhile reputation to uphold, they will stretch to meet our expectations. However, if we view others negatively, then we're likely to treat them without respect. In turn, sensing we dislike them, people are apt to put in minimum effort and to confirm our suspicions of them.

5) Set them realistically

Inexperienced leaders have a nasty habit of offering more than they, or their teams, can give. In doing so, they damage their character, sever relationships with customers, and discourage those they lead. In making exaggerated claims to gain business, they actually lose business in the long run after failing to come through.

Under promise and over deliver. Be sensible about your commitments, and diligently follow through on them. You don't get credit for intentions, only for accomplishment. Set your people up for success by setting aggressive but attainable goals for them.

6) Exceed them consistently

Go above and beyond what others expect from you as a leader. People expect you to be fair, but be generous as well. People expect you to respect them, but show you care for them, too. People expect you to be judicious when you exercise authority, but be willing to serve also. Over time, as you exceed expectations, talented people will flock to your organization. Everyone wants to work for a leader who has his or her best interests in mind and leads with excellence on a consistent basis.

ALUMNI CORNER

Spotlight on Jerry Goad

by Rosemarie Stevens

Nearly every month we see Jerry Goad in our meetings asking us to volunteer for various opportunities to serve our police department and our city. In addition to that, he has often gone to various area businesses to request donations to assist us with our fund-raising efforts. He often describes himself as a poor introvert. Fortunately, we all know better than to accept that description. The description I would provide is of a giving man who wants to, has been and is of service to all. He has a remarkable history as well, but I can only provide highlights as I'm told my space is limited.

He was born in Sweetwater, Texas, which he described as the rattlesnake capital of the world. He has been married to Kay Goad for 56 years. (I will share her biography next month.) It seems like it was only yesterday that we celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. He likes to travel to Europe and within the USA, and he still flies. He has even shown us aerial photographs of the police station that he took while flying.

Before starting his 35-year career at J. C. Penney, he attended Hardin Simmons University earning both a BBA and an MBA. He was inducted into the Athletic Hall of Hardin Simmons in 1996. He earned the Northeast Tarrant County Volunteer and Man of the Year Award in 2001 for his service to the City and received the President's Gold Lifetime Volunteer Award in 2006 for his service on behalf of ECPAAA.

He is a graduate of CPA Class 17. He was encouraged to attend the class by an old friend and says he remains an active member because of the great people in our organization and in the City of Euless. He has served on the Executive Board in the past and is now serving on the Board once more.

Give Jerry a big hug when you see him again and challenge him to a game of tennis, if you have the nerve.

Thank you Jerry for all you do.

Bedford/Euless/North Richland Hills Joint CERT Tabletop Exercise

by Leah Benoit

On Tuesday, March 23, 2010 at 6:30 p.m., Bedford, Euless and North Richland Hills CERT teams came together for the first multi-city CERT exercise in the Mid-Cities. Participating were 22 Euless CERT members, 19 Bedford CERT members and 8 North Richland Hills CERT members. There were also 9 CERT instructors/liaisons from the three cities. Our own Lt. Joe Kraft, Cpl. James Gordon, Office David Parker and Vernon Gilmore (Fire Dept.) came out to lend their support and observe the tabletop drill. Also in attendance to observe the training exercise was Melanie Devine, Emergency Preparedness Specialist, with the North Central Texas Council of Governments (NCTCOG).

Melanie Curl, Bedford CERT – Training VP, was instrumental in getting the three cities together for the exercise. Melanie also wrote the disaster and all of the scenarios for the exercise. When the team members arrived at 6:30 p.m. they were read the incident/dispatch information. From there, an incident commander was chosen from the 50 CERT members. The incident commander then put together teams for three locations in North Richland Hills that sustained damage: Laserquest, Walgreens and Richland Hills United Methodist Church. For each location, a team leader was chosen as well as Triage, Search and Rescue and Scribes. Each location had two proctors – Lou Baum and Leah Benoit were Euless' proctors. The proctors were charged with reading scenarios from Melanie's script about every 3 to 5 minutes to the team they were assigned to. Lou was assigned to Incident Command and Leah was assigned to the Richland Hills United Methodist Church. The teams had to keep track of everything that was going on at their location plus figure out how to handle the new scenarios that were thrown at them by the proctors.

In summary, the tabletop exercise was a huge success. It was nice to see all three cities working together. And when the teams were formed for the three locations mentioned above, they did not divide along "city" team lines, but merged well with one another and quickly began establishing accountability, resources, communication, etc. Well done Euless CERT members! There was consensus around the room that the members are well trained and would be able to respond to an incident should it require our joint efforts. Ms. Divine praised the success of the exercise and reported that a regional live training exercise is in the works for the future.

A huge thank you to our CERT instructors – hats off to all of you!

A PRAYER FOR YOU

By Terry Martin
Crime Victims Assistant Volunteer

I said a prayer for you today
I know God must of heard.
I felt the answer in my heart
Although He spoke no word.

I didn't ask for wealth or fame
I knew you wouldn't mind.
I asked to send you treasures
Of a far more lasting kind.

I asked that He'd be near you
At the starting of each day.
To grant you health and blessing
And friends to share your way.

I asked for happiness for you
In all things great and small.
But it was for His loving care
I prayed for most of all.

This simple little poem
May bring to you a smile.
Remember you are special
And you are all worthwhile.

We hope your Easter Bunny Day
Was fun and all went well.
Until the next time our dear friends
We bid you fond farewell.
